MEDITERRANEAN ISLAND WINES

From Corsica and Sardinia to Sicily, Santorini and beyond, the islands of the Mediterranean produce wines shaped by sun, salt air, and rugged terrain. Each island tells its own story—volcanic soils, ancient vines, native grapes—yet they share a common thread: bright acidity, coastal minerality, and a spirit that reflects life by the sea. These are wines of place, tradition, and timeless Mediterranean character.

Corsica

Corsica, birthplace of Napoleon, is a wild, mountainous island surrounded by the Mediterranean Sea—and its wines reflect that bold coastal spirit. Native grapes like Niellucciu (a cousin of Sangiovese) and Vermentinu thrive in windswept vineyards perched above the sea, producing wines that are savory, mineral, and laced with wild herbs of the maquis. Influenced by both French precision and Italian soul, Corsican wines offer a pure, untamed taste of the Mediterranean coast.

Vermentinu, Clos Signadore ‘A Mandria’, Patrimonio, Corsica, 2023 85

Elegant and structured, with black cherry, dried herbs, and earthy spice.
Silky tannins and an iron-tinged finish.
WINEMAKER — MURIEL GIUDICELLI

Sardinia

Sardinia’s terroir is defined by granite soils, strong coastal winds, and intense Mediterranean sun. These elements, along with high elevation and cool nights, create ideal conditions for low-yield, high-flavor wines. The island’s isolation has preserved unique grapes like Cannonau, Vermentino, and Granazza, producing wines with salty minerality and wild herbal notes. Deeply rooted in tradition, Sardinian wines reflect the rugged, maritime landscape and centuries of hands-off winemaking.

Vermentino, Argiolas, Costamolino Vermentino di Sardegna, Sardinia, 2024 55
Crisp & Virbant – citrus blossom, white peach, green apple, and fresh herbs.

WINEMAKER — SIMONE SEDILESU

Cannonau (Grenache), Pala Cannonau di Sardegna Riserva, 2021 80

Cannonau (Grenache), Vikevike ‘Ghirada Fittiloghe’ Rosso, Barbagia, 2021 105
Ripe & Bright, primarily red cherry, with hints of Dr. Pepper and baking spice with a dry clean finish. Sardinian’s answer to Pinot Noir drinkers.
WINEMAKER — SIMONE SEDILESU

Sicily

The largest island in the Mediterranean, Sicily is a land of sun, sea, and smoking volcanoes—most notably Mount Etna. Its wines are shaped by this dramatic landscape, where ancient vines grow in volcanic ash and coastal breezes cool sun-drenched vineyards. Native grapes like Nero d’Avola, Nerello Mascalese, and Carricante thrive here, producing wines that balance power and elegance—a vibrant, earthy expression of the island’s complex soul.

Eastern Mediterranean Islands

From the sun-drenched islands and coastal vineyards of the Mediterranean Basin—stretching over 2,500 miles—these wines capture the influence of sea, wind, and rugged terrain. From the Adriatic shores of Croatia to the ancient vineyards of Cyprus and Greece, each selection reflects a deep connection to place. Bright acidity, mineral-driven structure, and native expression define these wines—crafted from both indigenous and international varieties, shaped by centuries of tradition and a modern approach to balance and drinkability.

A HERITAGE ROAST WITH ITALIAN SOUL

Our coffee is roasted by Mr. Espresso, a family-run roaster from Oakland with deep Italian roots. Founded by an immigrant from Naples, they brought the art of true Italian espresso to the West Coast—slow-roasted over oak wood for a distinct, caramel depth. It's tradition, perfected over decades, and the kind of craftsmanship we connect with deeply at Pinyon.
